Seeking Alpha is the world's largest investing community. Powered by the wisdom and diversity of crowdsourcing - millions of passionate investors connect daily to discover and share new investment ideas and strategies, discuss breaking financial news, debate the merits of stocks, and make informed investment decisions. +22 million people use Seeking Alpha every month across multiple platforms.

Seeking Alpha has unparalleled breadth and depth: from stocks, ETFs and mutual funds to commodities and cryptocurrency, including thousands of stocks (such as small and mid-caps) not analyzed elsewhere. SA writers also dive into personal finance, with suggestions for retirement minded strategies. Written by and for investors, thousands of contributors publish thousands of investing ideas every month. Each investment thesis undergoes a rigorous editorial review, ensuring the highest quality standards. A healthy debate ensues, as trading enthusiasts all over the world discuss and share their own thoughts and ideas.

Seeking Alpha levels the playing field by putting exclusive tools, until now available only to Wall-Street professionals, into the hands of individual investors. Advanced tracking, monitoring, charting, data visualizations, technical and fundamental analysis add clarity and enable informed, data-driven decision-making.

Our brand offers a suite of plans that address specific investing styles and user needs:

I was excited to discover Seeking Alpha as a website and subscribed to the premium service pretty quickly. I was also excited here

So the contributors at SA don't all belong to hedge funds or national brokers but, that doesn't seem to matter. In a word... they are dependable!!

good news fedbut cannot add stocks to portfolio
